

Sharing Survey Results: Overcoming Obstacles

Goals to focus on to address common challenges around the sharing survey results process

Goal	Best Practice Recommendations
Process step: Review results
Understand the reports or data  Notes:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li><input type="checkbox"/> Build in time to take the data personally and then move onto a mindset of curiosity (move from WHAT!!! to Why?).</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Don't let the one data point (e.g., the Engaged Index) distract you from more actionable changes (specific indicators, behaviors, etc.).</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Explore additional reporting tabs to learn more about the data (is it a trend or just a movement from a 9 to an 8?).</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> If you don't know why something changed, and it seems important, ask your team.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> If the change seems to be due to a temporary circumstance, you don't need to focus on it.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Are you a data junkie? Give yourself a time limit and then move on using the insights you've gathered. Remember, you should only focus on one or two things.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Consider bringing the data to other managers for additional perspectives.</li></ul>
Process step: Make a plan
Create a plan for a successful conversation  Notes:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li><input type="checkbox"/> Plan to talk for half, listen for half.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> You don't need to discuss ALL the data. Focus on the items the team finds interesting.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Consider gathering some ideas in one-on-ones before the meeting.  “Why do you think this number might...” “What do you hope we talk about?”</li></ul>

Sharing Survey Results: Overcoming Obstacles

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li><input type="checkbox"/> Consider the data you will share in advance to encourage a more thoughtful conversation.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Come with an idea of what you think the team could focus on, but be open to their ideas.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Know that you don't need to have all the answers. Your job is to ensure the conversation happens.</li></ul>
Process step: Hold the meeting
Get employees to talk  Notes:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li><input type="checkbox"/> Post the data and/or the questions you plan to ask prior to the meeting so your team can take time to consider their replies.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Get them into small groups to share perspective in a safer setting before asking for large group input.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Let them know you are interested in what they have to say and be patient.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Try smaller group discussions of the data with a larger group conversation around findings.</li></ul>
Encourage equal participation  Notes:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li><input type="checkbox"/> Split the team into small groups so more people feel comfortable sharing their thoughts.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> If someone is likely to dominate the conversation, consider talking with them before the meeting:  “You are such an influencer; I’d love it if you worked with me to allow others to share their perspective.”  “Your perspective is helpful, and I may not have time to fully get into it now... can we set up time after the meeting to discuss in more detail?”</li></ul>
Help the team see value  Notes:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li><input type="checkbox"/> Be visible in promoting participation so the data is more meaningful.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Make it a priority to decide on a focus area that can lead to improvements (simple can be best!).</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Be tenacious about following up on survey focus areas so they know you take the feedback seriously.</li></ul>
Address complaints or topics that derail the conversation in a positive and productive way  Notes:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li><input type="checkbox"/> Be honest in setting expectations.  “I can see this is a problem for you, but I don’t know how we can influence [it/the issue]. Does anyone have any ideas how we might address this challenge?”</li></ul>

Sharing Survey Results: Overcoming Obstacles

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li><input type="checkbox"/> Refocus the conversation."I can tell this is creating some challenges and I will make a note of this topic to think on later. I'd like to move on so we have time to think through challenges we can have an impact on."</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Follow up with outside resources."I heard you were challenged by [issue/problem] and I reached out to someone who is more familiar with how it works. Here is what I learned..."</li></ul>
Decide on a focus area  Notes:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li><input type="checkbox"/> Look for a theme to address."It seems like a lot of our challenges are linked to [communication]. Let's decide on something we can all focus on that would help with these challenges."</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> When in doubt, focus on specific behaviors."Which behaviors could we all do more consistently that would have the biggest impact on improving our culture in the coming months?"</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Try a Continue/Stop/Start exercise to get people focused on next steps."What are we already doing well that we should continue to do?" "What should we stop doing?" "What should we start doing?"</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Do you have a lot of scores in the passive (7/8) category? Try asking, "While a score of 7 or 8 is good, I don't want us to settle. What would it take for us to feel comfortable getting to a 9 or a 10?"</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> If you run out of time, schedule another meeting.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> If you have a list of ideas, post them and have people vote (circle stickers, hashes on the board, etc.) or run a poll.</li></ul>
Process step: Take action
See positive change  Notes:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li><input type="checkbox"/> Schedule additional meetings if necessary.</li><li><input type="checkbox"/> Follow up with team members who didn't speak or seemed frustrated in a one-on-one (with curiosity!).</li></ul>

Sharing Survey Results: Overcoming Obstacles

- Be intentional at recognizing people on your team (and outside your team!) that deliver on your focus area.
- If you “drop the ball,” pick it back up again.
- Intentionally communicate progress on your focus area.
- Set aside time to check in on the focus area. Use one minute at the start of regular meetings:
  - “Who has seen someone doing a great job of [focus area]?”
  - “Can anyone think of a time when they could have done [focus area] more or better?”
  - “Who has an idea of how we can get even better at [focus area]?”
- If the focus area you picked starts to feel stale, move on to another idea that was shared in the meeting.
